REPORT SCRAPS 26 BROOKLYN CAR LINES

Transit Board Submits Plan for Rerouting Surface Roads.

IS QUEENS

148 Miles of Track to Be Abandoned, 29.5 Per Cent. of Total.

END OF DEFICITS IS SEEN

Economic Effect of Proposed Reorganization Set Forth in Detail.

Twenty-six surface car lines are finated to be scrapped in Brooklyn in the tentative rerouting plan pre-sented at the resumption of the Transit Commission's investigation yesterday by Daniel L. Turner, consulting engineer to that body. None is to be sacrificed in Queens Borough Portions of the routes of nine of the Brooklyn lines which it is proposed to abandon, however, will be utilized in the process of rerouting. A liberal use of bus operation is recom mended as feeders to the other lines in certain outlying districts.

Turner's tentative plan provides for the preservation of approximately 356 of the present 504 miles of track It is proposed to abandon 148 miles of track, of which 39 miles not now in use were abandoned following the trol-ley strike of 1920. In terms of percent-age it is recommended that about 23.5

age it is recommended that about 29.5 per cent. of the present Brooklyn trackage be scrapped.

Mr. Turner occuried the witness chair throughout yesterday's examination, which was conducted by Clarence J. Shearn, special counsel to the Transit Commission. The witness, in expounding his propect, divided Brooklyn into two parts—one within a five mile ratwo parts—one within a five mile radius of the Brooklyn end of the Brooklyn Bridge and the other the vection lying outside such a radius. Within the five mile radius, he said, there are about 355 miles of single track. Of this trackage in central Brooklyn 87 miles is proposed to be abandoned, or about 24 nor posed to be abandoned, or about 24 per cent, of the total lying within the five mile limit. In the outlying areas there are 146 miles of single track, of which 56 miles are to be discarded.

In place of the seventy-one separato lines now operated by twelve different companies it is proposed to discontinue twenty-six lines, to establish nine recouted lines and to leave thirty-six lines substantially as they now are, except that they are to be more efficiently and intensively covered.

Intensively operated.

The rerouting plan does not include any surface lines which are interborough in cheracter, that is, operating partly in Brooklyn and partly in Queens. sertly in Brooklyn and partly in Queens. But it is proposed that such interborough surface lines as have been designated as parts of the Manhattan system shall operate over some of the Brooklyn and Queens trackage in common with the Brooklyn and Queens lines. Following is the list of the twenty-six Brooklyn lines named for the discard, chiefly on the ground the traffit which they now carry can be better served either by existing parallel rapid transit routes or by the rerouting of transit routes or by the rerouting of surface lines which are to survive:

Lines operated by the Brooklyn City Company—Avenue C, Cypress Hills, Flatbush avenue shuttle, Greenpoint, Meeker avenue, Myrtle avenue, Sixteenth avenue, Sixty-fifth street-Bay Ridge avenue, Grand street shuttle, Sixty-fifth street-Fort Hamilton avenue, Tompkins avenue and Union avenue.

ovenue and Union avenue.

Operated by the Brooklyn Heights receiver—Montague street.

Operated by the Brooklyn, Queens County and Suburban Raliroad Company—Broadway Ferry shuttle, Reid

pany—Broadway Ferry shuttle, Reld avenue and Fulton-Crescent street.

Operated by the Coney Island and Brooklyn receiver—Smith street.

Operated by the Nassau Electric receiver—Eighth avenue, Fifteenth street, New Lots avenue, Ocean avenue, Sixtynifth street-Eighty-sixth street, St. John's place, Union street and West End.

Operated by the South Brooklyn Rallroad Company—Gravesend avenue.

Irrespective of rerouting, which is bicely to result from further study, elimination of the twenty-six lines above listed, Mr. Turner said, will require certain substituted service. He proposed to achieve this by rerouting the following nine Brooklyn lines—Court street, Fifth avenue, Flatbush avenue, Firshing-Ridgewood, Grand street, Hamilton Forry, Summer avenue, Utica avenue and Wilson avenue. Forry, Sumner avenue, and Wilson avenue.

Mr. Turner testified that the number operated in Brook of revenue passengers carried in Brook-lyn and Queens in 1921 was $27,00,, n00, which represented 24 per cent. of the total carried in the entire city. The carried 470,000,000. On the surface lines, he testified, the number of transfers issued slumped from 165,000,000 to 44. 880,000 annually, this diminution being the measure of the disintegration of the annually, this diminution being asure of the disintegration of the systems.

Bail of $10,000 each was imposed yesterday by Commissioner Hitchcock on five alleged counterfeiters rounded up Monday by secret service men under Capt. John S. Tucker.

So swiftly had the secret service men worked that only about twenty "queer" 1921 car milesge amounted to 1000. This would be reduced apsurface systems.

In his discussion of the probable economic effects of the reorganization Mr.
Turner said that on the Brooklyn and Queens surface systems combined the total 1921 car mileage amounted to 54,850,000. This would be reduced approximately 14 per cent., to 47,295,000, under the proposed rerouting. Such a reduction, he thought, should enable these lines, which now are operating under a deficit per car mile of 7.2 cents, to break nearly even.

At the close of the examination Chairman George McAneny, who, with Commissioner Le Roy T. Harkness, conducted the session, said:

missioner Le Roy T. Harkness, conducted the session, said:

"It should be understood publicly that any definite action taken in the matter of rerouting will be made the subject of public hearings."

Adjournment of further discussion of the Brooklyn plan was taken to next Monday, March 6, at 2 P. M. Consideration of the attitude of the railroad companies toward the tentative valuations placed upon their properties by the commission's experts will go over working since the middle of September.

Marra's Devotion Unquestioned, as Even Magistrate Reynolds Admits.

will agree that Dominic Marra might have loved slightly less and avoided the have done more than he did to gather in, for better or worse, Miss Anna Carey of 851/4 Sackett street, Brooklyn.

Until Mr. Marra appeared in the Fifth avenue court, Brooklyn, yesterday before Magistrate Reynolds his love for Miss Carey was nobody's business ex-Carey, who is attractive and who teaches children in the Visitation Parochial School, Brooklyn, decided that while Mr. Marra's attentions were flattering they were also annoying and somewhat disconcerting. When a man takes to writing a two part book about your lack of enthusiasm for him and thinks nothing of standing on the stoop of your home for eight hours of a winter's night. It is time to do something about it-marry him or something.

Miss Carey did the only thing that appeared to her as reasonable. She had Mr. Marra, who is a salesman and who lives at 93 President street, Brooklyn, arrested. The arrest took place last Saturday night Miss Carey saying that Mr. Marra had informed her he was coming in a motor car to steal her away willy nilly and so forth. He was held in $500 ball for appearance yesterday.

Tank Corps Veteran.

Tank Corps Veteran.

In the possession of Miss Carey and her lawyer, Henry J. Beilman, 190 Montague street, as they appeared in accusation of Mr. Marra, were twenty letters and the manuscript of "The Outlaw Lover," Mr. Marra's maiden foray into literature. "The Outlaw Lover" belongs to the school of realism. It is quite a few leagues ahead of D. H. Lawrence, Evelyn Scott, Sinclair Lewis, Ben Hecht, Floyd Dell, Charles G. Norris and the like. It might be explained that Mr. Marra served his country well and freely in the tank corps during the late war, and while this account of his private affairs does not aspire to literary criticism, yet there are evidences in this manuscript that Mr. Marra's experiences at the wheel of a whippet have influenced his pen.

The letters written to Miss Carey by Mr. Marra are just letters. Millions like them have carried a similar message. But "The Outlaw Lover" is nothing more or less than raw soul on paper. The first part is called by its author "A True Fact of True Love, Square Love, Mean Love, Wicked Love, Unfair Love." The subjects are dealt with fervently and without Victorian restraint. Mr. Marra feels emotion and prompitty puts it into the written word. For example, he cites the evening when he and Miss Carey listened to "Tristan and Isoide."

"The outlaw lover went into a blush," he writes, "when he invited her to the opera and she went into a blush," he writes, "when he invited her to the opera and she went into a blush," he writes, "when he invited her to the opera and she went into a blush," he writes, "when he invited her to the opera in the correct what effect the Wagnerian love drama may have had friends."

He does not record what effect the Wagnerian love drama may have had upon Miss Carey (probably none), but sees himself as the unhappy Triston. Then he hustles on to part two of "The Outlaw Lover," which is called "The Outlaw Lover and the Woman Who Broke Her Word." Miss Carey insists she couldn't have broken her word inasmuch as she never pledged it with Mr. Marra.
